Factors affecting your score

39.

Your CIBIL Score is not only dependent on your timely payments towards loans/credit cards that have been availed but also the amount that has been paid. E.g. If you have a high credit utilization on a credit card and are making monthly minimum payments by the due date, this will not affect your payment history. However, this will impact your CIBIL Score as the minimum payments made is low in comparison to the actual amount payable. You can maintain your CIBIL Score by making timely payments every time, as well as ensuring you are paying off the balances on the loans/credit cards. Paying more than the minimum due will help bring down the total outstanding on the accounts.

36.

One of the factors your CIBIL Score depends on is the number of active loan/credit card accounts reported in the last 36 months that carry a current balance. A high balance on such active accounts will impact your CIBIL Score. Paying off the balances on the loan and credit card accounts as well as not having too many open lines of credit with current balances will help maintain your CIBIL Score.
